

Executive Summary

SURVEY OF FACULTY OPINION ABOUT PERFORMANCE EVALUATIONS AND JOB RESPONSIBILITIES

It is likely that the majority of faculty members (approximately 60%) agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable. However, 40% of each, chair, and department heads; 40% each; and 20% of the entire faculty.

63% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.

It is likely that the majority of faculty members (approximately 53%) agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable. However, 70% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.

53% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.

70% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.

Faculty members who have been identified as needing additional support or training are more likely to agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable. However, 70% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.

70% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.

84% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.

It is likely that the majority of faculty members (approximately 45%) agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable. However, 56% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.

45% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.

56% of the entire faculty agree that the current performance evaluation process is fair and equitable.